Your host : Sana Hafsa

I'm Sana Hafsa, daughter of Mahdia, wife, mother, agricultural engineer, olive tree lover. As a social entrepreneur committed to designing and implementing Social and Solidarity Economy projects, I want to help set up innovative projects with a real economic, social and environmental impact.

I had the opportunity to develop support programs for civil society and private-sector organizations, to develop the technical and social skills of young people and women in the agricultural sector, and to strengthen their contribution to local development in their regions.

As an agricultural consultant and coach, I am currently dedicated to promoting the values of sustainable development by supporting permaculture initiatives and promoting the agricultural heritage of the Mahdia region, particularly land-sea culinary combinations and outdoor activities. I'll teach you the secrets of the olive tree and the principles of permaculture, inviting you to help out if you need to.

Highlights of the experience

- Visit to Sidi Bou Saïd and the Baron d'Erlanger palace;
- Visit the Medina of Tunis, the ruins of Carthage or the Bardo Museum (if it reopens);
- Sharing experiences and acquiring know-how, in the Mahdia region around the olive tree, with cooks of ancestral dishes, artisan producers of cosmetics and other crafts using natural ingredients (see tour program).

Ideal, if... :

You're curious about places and their inhabitants, their stories, cuisines, medicinal herbs, know-how, the solutions they've found to overcome life's difficulties by making the best use of their environment, making nature their best ally. If you're interested in acquiring scientific knowledge about the virtues of the olive tree: the impact of its leaves, oil and fruit on health and longevity. Learn all this by listening to a young woman, an agricultural engineer and local girl, who will tell you all about the secrets of tasting green gold, permaculture and a whole host of other things said and shown by other women.

It's not fixed knowledge that you'll gather from local characters, often with a lot of character, but an art of living and working that always serves people and nature in the best possible way. You'll have the chance to experience new and instructive things, while helping some of your guests to become more sustainable and escape the precariousness that is often the lot of women farmers and craftswomen in particular.

The spirit

All the hosts on this tour have been selected by the Tunisian association Balades Solidaires, whose aim is to support women entrepreneurs in rural areas in perfecting their skills. The aim is to present a quality product thanks to the training provided by the various experts and advisors offered by the association, in fields as diverse as hygiene, the art of the table, the rules of hospitality...

Only by producing quality products can these women claim a degree of financial autonomy, as part of sustainable regional development.

Behind this highly supportive project is a woman from Tunisian civil society, convinced that there is a great injustice behind the fact that such admirable women, holders of precious know-how, live in precarious conditions. She gathered around them equally admirable women from the capital: doctors, architects, teachers, entrepreneurs... to come to the rescue. A virtuous circle has thus been created, and today you have the opportunity to be part of it.

There's nothing more beautiful than experiencing a moment of peace and harmony with a soothing landscape. Discovering a country's history through its architecture, ruins and museums is also fascinating. And that's what we'll try to help you discover. But there's more, and even better, for those who are as curious about nature as they are about its men and women. How do local residents continue to draw on their past to find solutions for their present? What's the secret behind their Mediterranean cuisine, as appetizing as it is admired the world over for its impact on health and longevity? What can their experience offer visitors who come to meet them? Our "solidarity tourism tours", covering the different regions of Tunisia, will therefore have this ambition: to enable visitors to experience unforgettable moments of harmony with places and landscapes that are rejuvenating, while sharing the daily lives of the people who live there. Here, we invite you to discover a part of the capital Tunis and the Mahdia region, with first and foremost, their women, holders of an age-old know-how.

What you know will improve you and make others happy. At least that's our aim.
